

IPC Power Conversion Standards Meeting

The IPC will hold a Power Conversion Standards Meeting on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 26 – 27, 2007 at the Renaissance Schaumburg Hotel & Convention Center, 1551 N. Thoreau Drive, Schaumburg, IL 60173. The meeting will begin at 10:00 a.m. on Tuesday and will conclude on Wednesday at 3:00 p.m.

The intent of the meeting will be to review comments to the Final Draft of IPC-9592, Performance Parameters for Power Conversion Devices. This nearly 100-page document, developed by a subcommittee of the IPC OEM Critical Components Committee, standardizes the performance parameters for power conversion devices including but not limited to the computer and telecommunications industries. The specification sets the requirements for design; qualification testing; conformance testing; manufacturing quality processes and regulatory requirements but does not include the functional requirements of the specific equipment.

The meeting will begin with a description of the standards development process and an outline of the subjects covered by the document. The balance of the two days will be devoted to resolution of comments to the Final Draft. Members of the subcommittee who drafted the document – including representatives from Dell, Lenovo, IBM, H.P, Cisco Systems, Alcatel Lucent and Apple – are expected to attend the meeting.

Who would Benefit from Attending

All power supply manufacturers, OEMs, EMS companies – anyone in the electronics industry involved in the conversion of main power sources, usually AC, to lower DC voltages either for direct use of electronic circuits, or as a secondary source for additional DC to DC power conversion devices to provide several DC voltage levels for various electronic devices in a product.
